Japan – When to go where

When	Why
January	During Japan's coldest month, visit Jigokudani Monkey Park to see snow-sprinkled macaque bathe in hot springs. In Kyoto, thousands of archers compete during the Festival of the Great Target. Wrestling fans should head to Tokyo for the Sumo New Year Basho.
February	Venture to the northern city of Sapporo for the week-long Snow Festival (Yuki Matsuri). The event occupies Odori Park and surrounding streets with exhibitions of huge ice sculptures, concerts and traditional performances.
March	As spring approaches, see the Omizutori Festival in Nara, which includes music, parades and fire shows. Or, near Nagoya, watch hundreds of loincloth-clad men drive out misfortune during the Naked Man Festival. Most memorable of all is the Honen Matsuri, a fertility festival which must be seen to be believed.
April	April ushers in Japan's famous cherry blossom season, and is the busiest time to visit, so book well ahead. Kyoto and Tokyo are popular spots to take in this sea of pink, while the mountain town of Takayama is lesser-known but more romantic for it. April also sees Takayama's Sanno Festival, where large ornate floats are paraded through the streets.
May	Golden Week, a series of national holidays at the beginning of May, can be a chaotic time to visit. However, the weather in Japan is at its best, and Kyoto's Aoi Festival – a Shinto procession of over 600 costumed people – is worth fighting through the crowds for.
June	The beginning of June is warm and sunny throughout the country. On the 15th, hundreds of priests in Koyasan celebrate the birth of Kukai, the grand master of Japanese Buddhism. However, during the latter half of the month, the rain arrives and the humidity increases.
July	As the heat rises, Japan's rainy season begins. Head into the mountainous prefecture of Gifu to hike the Nakasendo way, the former route of the samurai which passes lush vegetation, abundant wildlife and fine waterfalls. The Gion festival in Kyoto takes place every year, and involves a huge procession of unique floats.
August	August is hot and humid, but there's a lot to see. The nation observes the three-day Buddhist custom of 'Obon', during which the traditional dance of 'Obon Odori' is performed throughout Japan. The 6th marks the anniversary of the atomic blast in Hiroshima – here, thousands of paper lanterns are set adrift on the River Ota in a moving ceremony.
September	September remains humid, and though there can be storms, they tend to be utterly spectacular. Professional sumo tournaments are held in Japan six times a year, once in every odd-numbered month, and September sees one of the largest tournaments in Tokyo. This is also the season for whale watching in many of the southern cities.
October	The autumnal colours in the Japanese Alps make for a scenic dip in an onsen . The weather is usually sunny but cool enough for hikes and cycling. Kyoto's Jidai Festival on the 22nd sees over 2,000 people in ornate costumes depart from Kyoto Imperial Palace towards Heian Jingu shrine.
November	Things begin to cool down, though the weather remains dry and sunny. The first few days of November are the only days of the year you can enter the Imperial Palace in Kyoto, and there are a number of smaller festivals in the city. On the 15th, parents of three, five and seven-year-old children dress their kids in kimonos and take them for prayer at a nearby temple during Shichi-Go-San.
December	The weather in December is crisp and cold, but the snow-filled trees and frozen lakes are a sight worth seeing. The Daikon festival in Kyoto on the 9th and 10th celebrates winter food and is well worth a visit. The Japanese don't celebrate Christmas, but traditionally on New Year's Eve, the Japanese eat toshikoshi soba (buckwheat noodles) and temples all over ring their bells 108 times to welcome in the new year.

Rachel's Top Tip

“The best way to travel around Japan is by bullet train but the language barrier can worry people. My biggest tip is not to panic when you arrive in a busy train terminal. Take your time, stop and wait for a minute and the boards will change from Japanese to English and you will be on your way!”

Annie Jensen

Annie's Top Tip

“I recommend guests travel around Japan independently by train. It is a great way to keep the cost down and to get a real sense of the place. It does frighten some people a bit but Japanese public transport runs like clockwork and we can always arrange for knowledgeable guide to accompany clients on their first day to explain the transport system. We haven't lost anyone yet!”

Debbie Rawnsley

Debbie's Top Tip

Japan has so much to offer but it's important to manage client expectations. For example, we usually quote using public transportation rather than private vehicles as the cost for private is very high. In more remote places, the accommodation can be more basic with shared bathroom facilities, tatami mat flooring and futon bedding but the authentic experience is definitely worth it.
